

Give Thanks

November is a time to remember and this year especially as it marks the 100th Anniversary of the end of the First World War. Annual remembrance services around the world on November 11th will mark this occasion with dignity and honour as everyone recalls the sacrifices made by those who lost their lives while serving in the armed forces. The bible quote from John Chapter 15, verse 13 “Greater love has no one than this: to lay down one’s life for one’s friends.” and a two minute silence at 11:00am will give us all the opportunity to pause and reflect on the ultimate sacrifice made by those men and women throughout history. November also sees our church come together and celebrate the lives of our friends and family who we love but see no longer.

Our memorial service on 4th November provides an opportunity for all to take some time and remember our loved ones who have died. Whether we light a candle, say a prayer, or simply stay quiet for a while, it is good to remember; sometimes with a smile, sometimes with sadness and a tear or two.

It was Jesus of course who laid down his life on the cross and rose again so that we might all have eternal life and this is the good news of the New Testament which rings true today and has done for two thousand years. So as we give thanks for those who fought and died, that we might live in a free world, and as we give thanks for the lives of our relatives and friends who are no longer with us, we should also give thanks 'with a grateful heart' for God’s Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ.

In Christian Love.

CHRISTIAN CHARITY NEWS

MEDAIR

This charity was set up in Switzerland in 1989 and now has branches in the UK, Europe and North America. It is a humanitarian organization inspired by Christian faith to relieve human suffering in some of the world's most remote and devastated places. They help families in crisis around the world, regardless of race, creed or nationality to survive and recover with dignity. They work in the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

They respond to health emergencies with doctors and health professionals where outbreaks of diseases such as cholera, measles and Ebola devastate villages. They support year-round health clinics to enable families to have regular access to primary health care, obstetric care and nutrition services and also provide preventative health care which includes vaccinating children against common diseases as well as promoting good health and hygiene practices.

Medair have teams of engineers who improve access to safe drinking water through methods such as wells, boreholes and rainwater harvesting. They build latrines and handwashing stations in villages and public spaces such as schools and clinics and empower community members to mobilise and educate families on hygiene practices to prevent diarrhoea and other diseases; therefore saving many lives.

When disasters such as earthquakes and tsunamis strike and destroy families' homes Medair supply protective and durable shelters and provide essential household items for immediate relief and warmth. As I write this, Medair's emergency response team are out in Sulawesi, Indonesia following the dreadful earthquake and tsunami which hit in September, where hundreds of thousands of people are without homes. They help families in these situations to later rebuild their homes, using stronger building materials and disaster-resilient construction methods.

They also work in refugee settlements, working alongside local builders to improve temporary shelters, making them warmer and safer for fleeing families. It's hard to imagine as we sit in our comfortable homes, but millions of people around the world have left their comfortable homes; some literally running away from danger and death, in just the clothes they were wearing at the time, leaving all of their possessions behind, to safely escape, not knowing when or if they will ever see their homes again.

Although Medair do recruit international staff, most of their workers are nationals of the countries they are working in.

Lynda Kelly

In October, Alistair Crooks delivered a most interesting presentation to Mothers' Union on the work of the Mission Aviation Fellowship which, you may remember, Lynda wrote about in this magazine in February 2017.

MAF uses planes to transform the lives of the world's most isolated people in need.

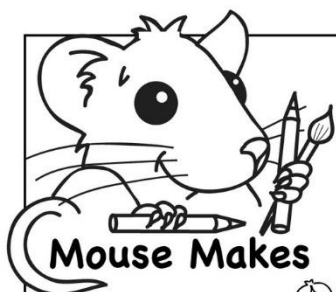

We learned that MAF collects postcards to raise thousands of pounds for their vital work. They have a fantastic team of volunteers who sell postcards to help fund their life-transforming flights. Last year, by selling postcards on ebay and the like, they raised a staggering £25,000!

Do you have some postcards you'd like to donate? They would love to receive both new and used postcards. If you do have any postcards to donate, please put them in the box on the table at the back of the Church.

Eco Top Tips Recycling

1. Check you know what can be recycled in your area, if you're not sure check the council website.
2. Set up simple systems in your home to make it easy to recycle. Where do you need a paper and card recycling bin, what about a compost bucket?
3. All your plastic bottles can be recycled, from mouthwash to salad dressing – so put them all in your recycling bin! In most boroughs, you can recycle all your plastic bottles, tubs and pots, and their tops and lids too.
4. Be pedantic about your recycling! Think about every item you put in the bin; should it go to landfill? Loo rolls come on card tubes, sweets come in foil or paper wrappers, apple cores can be composted and most packaging can be recycled now.
